

Iranian-Russian Dispute Before Security Council

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

London, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Iranian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly today took the first concrete steps to bring the explosive Iranian-Russian dispute before the World Security Council as Soviet delegates maintained complete silence on the issue. Andrei Gromyko, acting chief of the Soviet delegation, making the first major Russian speech before the assembly, ignored the Iranian question, which was causing serious concern among United Nations leaders.

Shortly before Gromyko took the floor, Hassan Taqizadeh, chief of the Iranian delegation, conferred with the executive secretary of the assembly on what Taqizadeh called "technical arrangements" for placing Iran's complaints before the Security Council.

Some of the Iranian leader's associates had indicated earlier that the case might be filed today or tomorrow, but they said they were uncertain over where and how to file it. Presumably this was the question taken up with Secretary Bludwyn Webb by Taqizadeh.

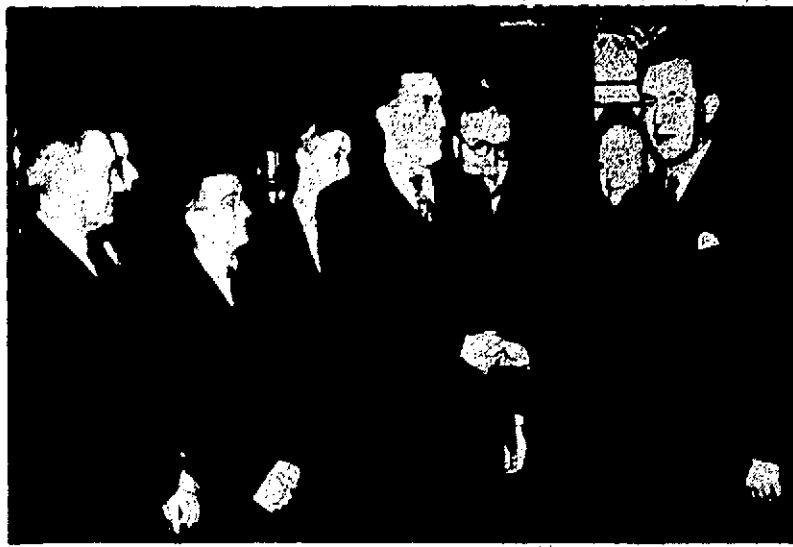

The Iranian diplomat said only that "technical arrangements" were discussed. Gromyko, meanwhile, told the assembly that the future peace of the world depends upon the unity of the big powers and warned against any efforts to cut their authority by revising the charter of the U.N.O.

He also strongly supported big-power plans to give the security council control of atomic energy problems.

Defending the big nation's position in the U.N.O., Gromyko said "all nations, big and small, are interested in securing a stable peace and in preventing a repetition of new aggression. In this their interests completely coincide."

"Endeavors to counterpose the big states with the small ones," he continued, "cannot be regarded with sympathy in the United Nations Organization, for this organization is a body to protect all peace-loving states, big and small."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—The stock market slipped at the opening today, in the wake of the boost in margins to 100 per cent, but steels soon led a selective recovery on expanding volume. Few in Wall Street exhibited the least surprise over the Federal Reserve Board move to stem speculation. Reports of such a step had been coming out at frequent intervals lately. In addition it was realized that, as Stock Exchange President Schram commented, "the market has been practically on a cash basis for some time."

Timidity of selling at the start provided a clue to the market's base. The steel group, aided by hopes of a quick settlement of the wage dispute, then turned around and converted early losses into advances running to 2 points at the close. Other leaders revived and, for a brief period, bidding was so insistent that the market fell behind actual floor transactions. The pace then slowed and, near the fourth hour, prices were only moderately irregular.

Court Rules Against Dentist's Arrangement

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP)—The Court of Appeals holds that a dentist who took a layman into partnership and paid him on a percentage basis is guilty of unprofessional conduct.

The state's highest tribunal, in a 5-2 decision, sustained yesterday a one-year suspension of the license of Dr. William Bell, New York City. The suspension had been imposed by the State Board of Regents on the basis of findings by the State Board of Dental Examiners.

Dr. Bell, the examiners reported, had employed Carl Anderson, a layman, and paid him a percentage of fees.

It was asserted by the Dental Board that Anderson's duties were primarily to contact seamen at piers and take them to Dr. Bell's office for dental work.

the government negotiations had offered to sanction an increase in steel prices but it did not say how much the increase would be.

"When the government at the 11th hour informed us about a week ago of its willingness to sanction an increase in steel ceiling prices," Fairless wrote, "we at once resumed collective bargaining negotiations with the union."

"Such price action by the government was a recognition by it of the right of the steel industry to receive price relief because of past heavy increases in costs, something which the steel industry for many months has unsuccessfully sought to establish with the O.P.A."

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

A taxpayers' action has brought out a judicial decree that Mayor Edelmuth's 1946 budget for the City of Kingston is unconstitutional having exceeded the two per cent limitation, which is permitted to be raised by taxation under the Constitution of the State of New York.

This matter has been brought to the attention of Mayor Edelmuth for a number of years. During political campaigns, however, the mayor attempted to ridicule the presentation of this situation by his opponents.

The late Dorr E. Monroe in a letter to The Freeman, which was published Monday, February 23, 1942, explained the provisions of the amendment to the Constitution, which would become effective January 1, 1944, limiting Kingston and other classified cities in the State of New York to raise by annual tax levy upon real estate not more than two per cent of the entire assessed valuation of the city.

On April 6, 1943, this newspaper printed an editorial captioned, "Kingston Faces a Crisis," which is re-printed in part as follows:

Alderman-at-Large John J. Schwenk should be commended for calling attention, in a recent address, to the crisis which faces Kingston in 1944.

He stated that in 1944 the city government will face a tax deficit of approximately $126,000, if the amount of the budget and the city's assessed valuation remain in the same approximate amounts as those of 1943. Commencing next year, the amount which can be raised on real estate in any city for city purposes, exclusive of debt service and the city's share of state and county taxes, cannot exceed two per cent of the average assessed valuation for the previous five years. This provision was incorporated in the State Constitution by the last constitutional convention to put a definite ceiling on the amount which hereafter can be raised by real estate taxes.

If the city's budget for city purposes hereafter exceed two per cent of the assessments, as defined above, the budget must be reduced so as not to exceed the two per cent limitation. The amount of required reductions is called "tax deficit."

The Constitution specified that by special law the Legislature may exclude the cost of education from the two per cent limitation. Last year, through the efforts of Senator Wicks and Assemblyman Wadlin, such a special law, excluding for five years the cost of Kingston's educational system, was passed by the Legislature. So, at least for the next five years tax revenues for the operation of our schools is assured.

BASEBALL FORECASTER

To stay famous, stick to the field in which fame was won. Departure may mean obscurity. That happened to the late Hugh Fullerton, who a generation ago ranked among the very top sports writers. When he turned to other subjects, he largely dropped out of sight.

Hugh Fullerton put baseball on a scientific basis. He discovered, for instance, that the effort required to throw a ball 350 feet in the New York ball park would send it 400 feet in the rarefied atmosphere of Denver. So closely did he study the teams that often he forecast not merely the outcome of a game, but the score and the number of hits and errors. These estimates often came startlingly close to the facts. This ability to judge opposing teams caused him to suspect the crookedness of the 1919 world's series and eventually to bring about its exposure.

COULD HE PRONOUNCE IT?

A turbaned Hindu with a "sir" before his name, went up the gang plank of the Queen Mary, England-bound after attending the United Nations food and agriculture conference in Quebec. When his turn came to give his name to steamship officials checking passenger lists, the Indian smiled, and said in perfect English: "I'm the one with the longest name." And he was. His name was Sir

BECOME A GAMBLER

I have just been cleaning up my income tax for the year 1945 and have reached the conclusion that I am in the wrong business. Hard-working, ambitious, desirous of providing for my family, I should get out of this business and become either a Black Marketeer or a gambler on the stock market. Unfortunately, I failed to pick the right parents and grandparents. Tommy Manville, Barbara Hutton and such people had more foresight. They now live on inherited wealth which is not taxed until you die and then you don't need it because you can't take it with you.

But those of us who have to work for a living are up against the cold fact that the government of the United States has reversed the history and traditions of this country by directing every official trend toward a lower standard of living for the people.

Even more, hard work, ambition, thrift are discouraged by the income tax, which makes it utterly futile for anyone to be diligent and place a terrible handicap upon the honest. In fact, it is much sounder to be a crook, and the statistics of money out of circulation prove it. In the year 1939, the total money of all kinds "in" circulation outside the Treasury and Federal Reserve Banks was $7,598,000,000; in October, 1945, that figure had risen to $28,049,000,000. That money is out of circulation. It is in safe deposit boxes, in shoeboxes, under mattresses, in old socks, anywhere that income tax inspectors are not likely to hit upon. It is true that occasionally a hoarder is caught, but smart folks take a chance that they won't be found out.

Of course, if a man has moral strictures against being a Black Marketeer or engaging in other rackets, he might take his chances on the stock market which is now running wild, because if he holds his stock six months, he only pays 25 per cent on the gains and he may have saved something on his earned income. If he nets a loss or goes broke, he pays nothing and he has had his fun.

The honest man hasn't a chance. A citizen who earns $10,000 over exemptions has to pay 41 cents on the dollar above that amount. That means that lawyers, doctors, dentists, public officials, small business men, junior executives and all such are stuck. They cannot save a dollar unless they lower their standards of living. Caught between Chester Bowles' constantly rising ceiling prices and the income tax, they grow poorer every year, and it does not matter if they work harder and earn more. The more they earn, the more they pay.

If you go up the line, it is even worse. Anyone who earns more than $38,000 over exemptions pays 72 cents on the dollar for every dollar earned above that figure. He might just as well leave the sweat and toil and headaches to Mr. Vinson and not earn that much. I know from my own experience that I do lots of things for 25 cents on the dollar that cannot be justified by the financial return. No use working if it brings nothing.

This is particularly tough on writers. A man spends 20 years of hard living to get the knowledge and experience which he put into a book. It sells. He is advertised as earning a fortune—all of which comes to him within one year. So he gets peevish. It is the same with radio and screen folks. And some of them only last a short time. That is one reason why Joe Louis has to chase around the country with a band, trying to get the shekels to pay taxes for a few good years, and why nobody wants to fight him for the championship.

The Black Marketeer and the stock exchange gambler and the man with a rich grandfather are the only ones who can beat the income tax racket. The rest of us are just poor sumps. I announce now that I shall vote against my present congressman unless he produces a substantial cut in my income tax bill. Do likewise, brother. It's votes that knock them dead.

STUTTERING

In grade 8, or senior fourth, at public school there were several of us trying for scholarship. The pupil who stood first at the examinations was the worst stuttester I ever heard. I never could understand why in conversation with other members of the class there was no sign of stuttering, but answering a question in class was impossible without stuttering. Today we know that stuttering is not caused by any defect of tongue, lips or organ of speech but is entirely due to the emotions.

In the Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease, Dr. James Sonnett Greene, Medical Director, National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York city, states:

"In my own observation and study of more than 20,000 stutterers have led us to the conclusion that stuttering is a somatic (body) manifestation or symptom of an emotional disorder based on a combination of disturbances of mind and body. There are certain characteristics so common to stutterers as a group, and so often repeated that a picture of the condition can be plainly seen. In other words the stutterer represents a 'special type'—the Stutterer Type—just as there are stomach ulcer types, fat type, lean type and others.

What kind of individuals are of the stutterer type?

Dr. Greene states that they are excitable, easily disorganized, greatly disturbed by unimportant circumstances, and they lack control. Because of these disturbances they hesitate when about to do anything and "hesitancy" is in fact a form of stuttering.

This hesitancy occurs not only in speech, stutterers may stutter on the typewriter, in playing golf or a musical instrument.

What is the underlying cause of this lack of emotional control that causes stuttering?

"There is a constitutional factor or cause that predisposes the individual to emotional instability. More than half of all stutterers show a family history of stuttering. To this constitutional factor, that is the makeup of the individual, something is added or occurs—a shock, a fall, a fright, or some change of circumstances such as a child just starting school—that sets on the stuttering.

Treatment of stuttering, as given in schools for speech disorders, consists in teaching the stutterer to be less self-conscious.

Courtship and Marriage

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The gay, colorful years when Kingston Point Park was the outstanding summer resort, not only for Kingstonians, but the entire Hudson river valley, was recalled to my mind by a clipping telling of the fire of incendiary origin that destroyed the big pavilion at the park on Sunday evening, March 30, 1924.

The pavilion was never rebuilt. It was open on all sides and was several hundred feet long, two stories in height, and built of Georgia pine. The pavilion was owned by the old Ulster & Delaware railroad.

The pavilion was built on the pier and could be plainly seen for many miles, both up and down the river, and it added a gay note to the park. At night on the river side of the building was a huge electric sign reading "Kingston Point Park." This was lighted at night. The second floor of the pavilion was equipped with benches and on a summer evening it would be crowded with people who had gathered there for a view of the river on a moonlight night. Opposite the pavilion was the grand stand in the lagoon, and the summer band concerts were one of the features of the park for many seasons.

In the days of the silent movies a large screen would be erected on the pier near the pavilion on which were thrown during the evening a program of moving pictures.

The old Queen of the Hudson, the steamer Mary Powell, on Fourth of July nights would run an excursion on the river after the annual display of fireworks in the park.

In the Gay Nineties and the early 1900's Kingston Point Park on a summer night would be crowded with thousands of local residents, and the trolley cars would be jammed tightly with passengers, coming and leaving the park. The last trolley car would leave at midnight and a warning bell would be sounded a few minutes before the car pulled out.

At a meeting of the board of managers of the Ulster County TB Hospital, which was then located on Clifton avenue, near the City Home, held on March 28, 1924, the board accepted the resignation of Dr. A. C. Gates as superintendent of the hospital. He had held the post since 1911.

The board appointed Dr. Leonard K. Stelle, a former health officer of Kingston, to succeed Dr. Gates as superintendent.

In the years that Dr. Gates served as superintendent the pay was small and the work required much time. He filled the post for years as he was deeply interested in public health measures.

With thousands of uniformed G. I.'s shouting at commanding officers that they won't march against "natives fighting for independence," or "let American ships be used to quell another fight for independence in Java," a wise Government would give its foreign policy back to the people.

With other thousands of uniformed G. I.'s chipping in to buy full-page ads in the nation's 15 largest newspapers to demand the ouster of War Secretary Patterson, and carrying placards reading "So! Nazi Propaganda Was Phooey!" and "Are We Patterson's Plaything?" a wise Government would realize that it had better get us under complete military control or hold off from involvement in another war for at least the conventional 20 or 25 years.

A wise Government would acknowledge that its uniformed G. I.'s are through being suckers for the same old worn-out alibis:

Alibi No. 1—First they were told that shipping was inadequate; now they're keeping track of the empty space on returning boats.

Alibi No. 2—A. C. Styer told Manila's complaining G. I.'s they were needed for "storing" and "saving all supplies and equipment in the interest of the United States; we can't just walk and leave it." Yet, that same day, an A. C. Styer showed 5,300 American bombers flown into the desert near Kingman, Arizona, to be deliberately demolished.

Alibi No. 3—Next, the boys were told they had to stay abroad to destroy the "war-making potential of hostile nations bent on keeping the world in a state of warfare." What "hostile" nations? The Philippines? Greenland? Java? Burma? India? China? (These are the areas in and near which these boys are kept.)

Alibi No. 4—Gen. Styer told the boys they'd have to stick it out because of a "changing international situation" and our "large world responsibilities." And Truman backed him on the "critical need for troops overseas." In plain talk, that means another war in prospect or a weasel-worded camouflage of continued American armed protection of other nations' cash registers. War with whom? And whose cash registers? Or wouldn't you want to tell the American people?

Alibi No. 5—Everything possible is being done to speed demobilization, said "Honest Bob" Patterson (who earlier was caught trying to bury a revealing War Department Pearl Harbor report). He was forced to confess he didn't even know that discharge points had stopped accumulating on V-J Day, five months earlier. How embarrassing it must have been for him when his own War Department announced the next day that two of the Philippine's released after the end of January.

Yet Col. Mahoney, provost marshal in Yokohama, childishly chided the boys who booed Patterson by whining that they had "insulted a man who was a soldier before they were born, and asking if they wanted lace panties." He naively blamed the G. I. demonstrations on "Communists and Bolsheviks," while New York's Rep. Wadsworth, the perennial specialist in draft legislation, was comforting himself back in Washington by insisting that "some radicals got hold of those fellows in Manila and got them excited."

Would it clarify the issue to declare the war officially over? Believe it or not, Congress hasn't done that yet. And the drafting of men won't stop until six months after it does.

If this Administration wants to continue the Roosevelt policy of meddling its way into half the wars, and bringing directly on itself the other half, it had better take steps to replace Mr. Wadsworth's draft act with an iron-clad military dictatorship—quick! Because our troops have shown themselves no more voluntary than the rest of us for the kind of propaganda that apparently needs 20 to 25 years to regain its effectiveness.

No Useful Purpose in Any More Troop Demonstrations Now That Congress Knows the Full Story

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 18.—Astonishingly, it is a mild word to describe the reaction of military men here to the demonstrations among our troops overseas. For one hears emphatic comments to the effect that the generals overseas permitted near-mutinies and should have disciplined the ring-leaders. Actually the outbursts are unprecedented. In some instances they did resemble mutinies, and military police had to be called out to preserve order. Word has gone forth now to commanders in all overseas theatres not only to forbid any further demonstrations but to impose disciplinary measures on those who instigate or participate in demonstrations.

No punishment probably will be meted out to those who have taken part heretofore because it is believed that the mass demonstrations were not curbed in the first instance by the officers in charge and hence it was as much the responsibility of the commanders as the men.

But now that General Eisenhower has issued his explanation and it is apparent that Congress knows fully about the attitude of the troops, there would be no useful purpose in any further demonstrations.

Difficult Problem
General Eisenhower has had a difficult time with the problem. He was grilled by members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee to the point where he nearly lost his temper. The chief of staff did not draw up the original demobilization plans. He has been fighting overseas these last few years and is unfamiliar with the intricacies of War Department policy. He has hardly had time to get acquainted with his staff and with the details of the major problems facing him, yet, because he is the chief, he must come before congressional committees and be asked questions to which he cannot as yet furnish the answers.

It doesn't seem fair to the general to place upon him the responsibility for making demobilization policy. Nor does it seem right to blame him for the failure of Congress to adopt a policy that would furnish replacements for overseas troops.

Replacements the Issue

Mother Cabrini May Soon Become Saint

Pope Pius XII will hear prayers for the canonization of Blessed Mother Francesca Saverio Cabrini, founder of the Sacred Heart missions in America, and three other candidates for sanctification at a public consistory in St. Peter's Cathedral, February 21, the Associated Press reported yesterday.

Another Cabrini was the founder of the Sacred Heart orphanage at West Park.

If Mother Cabrini is canonized she will become the first American citizen to be elevated to the sisterhood. She died in Chicago in 1917. Vatican sources, meanwhile, expressed belief that virtually the entire membership of the College of Cardinals would attend the February 18 secret consistory at which 32 prelates from six continents will become princes of the church. Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York is one of the 32 men who will be elevated to cardinal.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

BABSON DISCUSSES AIRLINES

New York City, Jan. 18.—Have you had an unfortunate experience at LaGuardia Airport in New York City where I waited from 6 a. m. for a plane due to leave for the South at 7:30 a. m. Then at the very last minute it was announced that "due to weather conditions" the flight had been cancelled. I immediately went to the Penn. Station to get a Pullman berth. There I was told that all space had been sold for two weeks ahead. Let me further add that, although I had my plane reservations two weeks in advance, I would now have to wait another two weeks before getting another plane seat.

Air travel is marvellous when the weather is good and there are plenty of planes; but this winter on long routes it is terrible. For runs over 400 miles I advise readers to engage Pullman accommodations and not depend upon airlines. The same general principle may also apply to airline stocks as an investment. For a few years they should have good earnings and much glamour; but then look out! They may be as uncertain as the long run, as the weather.

Government Competition
Now that our country is honeycombed with a network of railroads, it would be surprising if it were not possible for the government to build new competing railroad lines. Furthermore, the government is probably now selling for less than their original cost, not to mention reproduction costs, steam locomotives and terminals, as well as their equipment.

With the airlines the situation is very different. They own no railroads nor terminals. The air is free to all; while the terminals are publicly owned. At any time the government could start competing air routes with little expense. This means that—however the profits may be during these lean years—they can be increased tremendously; but this does not mean that airline companies will always make much money. Furthermore, it is strongly suggested that some airplane stocks are now selling too high.

An Investment Yardstick
One of the best yardsticks for judging most stocks is the relation of price to earnings. I try to select stocks which are selling about ten times their annual earnings; certainly twenty times is a maximum ratio. Yet, the leading airline stocks are today averaging to sell at forty times their earnings. Two of the most popular are selling from sixty to seventy times earnings. This seems crazy to me.

Of course, there is one thing about airline stocks which appeals to investors, viz. in order to buy an interest in 75 per cent of the nation's rail business an investor must buy stocks in 300 different railroads. But he can buy an interest in 75 per cent of the total air business by buying the stocks of only seven airline companies. These are American Airlines, Eastern Airlines, United Airlines, T.W.A., Pan American, Northwestern and Penn. Central. Personally, I am not keen for anything that operates on wheels and that depends upon franchises or public regulations.

The best inflation hedge is good real estate. Mother Earth upon which we live—near enough to us as to be free to all; while the terminals are publicly owned. At any time the government could start competing air routes with little expense. This means that—however the profits may be during these lean years—they can be increased tremendously; but this does not mean that airline companies will always make much money. Furthermore, it is strongly suggested that some airplane stocks are now selling too high.

Hadassah Chapter Will Meet Monday Night To Plan Annual Youth Aliyah Drive

A joint meeting of Junior and senior Hadassah chapters will take place in the B'nai B'rith building Monday, marking the beginning of the annual Youth Aliyah Drive of which Hadassah is the official representative in this country. A special movie, narrated by Paul Muni, will be part of the evening's entertainment. This will be the first winter meeting of Hadassah in the B'nai B'rith building.

In preparation for the drive, Mrs. Julius Mandell, chairman, spoke to a recent Hadassah board meeting telling them of the desperate needs of the suffering children in Europe. Plans were also made for the annual donor's luncheon April 3.

Mrs. Mandell stated that more than 85 per cent of the Jewish refugee children brought to Europe since war ended in Europe are orphaned. "Almost all have witnessed the most brutal tortures," she continued. "Some have become emotionally cold and accustomed to death on a mass scale." These children have been resettled in Palestine by Youth Aliyah which provides homes for them in cooperative agricultural settlements, schools and institutions. "Hadassah pays the major cost of maintaining them," Mrs. Mandell stated.

The Youth Aliyah movement was started in 1933 by Mrs. Henrietta Azold, founder of Hadassah, who with co-workers in Germany worked out a scheme for preparatory training for the children before they left their native lands and an intensive two year course of work and study after they arrived in Palestine. In the last year 2,500 children have come to Palestine with 6,000 in training.

Increased membership in Hadassah chapters in the United States is needed to continue this work and other projects of welfare for misplaced persons, Mrs. Mandell concluded. Anyone desiring to join Hadassah may call Mrs. Nathaniel Gross, 482.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

A CASE OF NEEDLESS CRUELTY

A young girl writes as follows: "Two of my friends, Sally and Molly were taken by a neighbor to call on some newcomers who have just bought a beautiful house. Both the host and hostess took an immediate liking to Sally and invited the girls to supper a few evenings after. All during the evening, it was given this to Sally and given that to Molly; show this to Sally and show that to Molly; we must take Sally here and there with us, etc. Poor Molly felt the ugly duckling."

"Since that evening these neighbors have carried out their liking for Sally. They now treat her almost as their own daughter. Not long ago when Molly was invited again with Sally for supper, Molly felt so completely left out of everything that finally she got up, and so and left! The newcomers think she behaved abominably and are talking to everyone about it. Will you express your opinion of this situation, especially of the manners of those concerned?"

The best answer I can make is that no matter how unfairly the newcomers showed their preference for Sally, Molly's behavior was inexcusably uncontrolled. I agree, of course, that the blame for the unhappy situation rests on the newcomers' lack of tact. They might have shown special liking for Sally by inviting her more often and for longer, but here could be no excuse for what would seem to have been actual unkindness to Molly.

Choosing a Godparent
Dear Mrs. Post: I hear it is improper to choose a grandparent for a godparent? If so, would you tell me why?

Answer: It is not "improper," but unless the child's near relatives are many, it may prove a disadvantage to the child. The whole idea of godparents is that they not only will look after the child's spiritual education should the parents die before he is grown, but that they actually will take the place of a family should the child have none. For this reason, godparents should be chosen from friends rather than from relatives and preferably they should be young. The grandmother is already a near relative and surely not so young as the parents' friends.

Owner Goes First
Dear Mrs. Post: When having to unlock the door and enter an empty house, is it impolite for the owner to go first before an accompanying friend?

Answer: On the contrary, it is proper that the owner go first to open doors and turn on lights.

After cutting meat, should the fork be transferred to the other hand? Music Group Studies Franck And His D Minor Symphony

The Music Appreciation Group met with Mrs. N. LeVine Haver at her home on Pearl street, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and Miss Ruth Smith arranged the program about Cesar Franck and his "Symphony in D Minor."

Miss Smith gave a sketch of the composer's life. She said that although he was born in Belgium he lived in Paris for the 53 years of his working life being organist of the Church of St. Clothilde for 40 years. For this reason Franck claims him as one of her distinguished composers of the late 19th century. He wrote considerable music for piano and organ but only one composition in each of the larger forms—one piano concerto, one string quartet, one quintet, one piano sonata and one symphony. As a man he was deeply religious, simple, direct, yet well informed. These qualities characterized his music. His harmonic sense is marked by his chromaticism. He stands out too as the developer of "cyclic form." There is another worldliness in his music that distinguishes him as a pioneer in musical mysticism," Miss Smith concluded.

"The Symphony in D Minor" is his best known work and Mrs. Terwilliger described each of the three movements before recordings were played. Members were given skeleton scores which followed the melodic line of the symphony showing the use of various instruments and marking the themes, their exposition, development and recapitulation.

At ten time Mrs. Harry Smith assisted the hostess by pouring.

The next meeting will be February 7 at the home of Mrs. Edward H. Remmert, 25 Mountain View avenue. The topic will be "Art Song" led by Mrs. Kenneth Kukuk and Mrs. Ralph Harper.

Miltonberger, who would succeed Maj. Gen. John F. Williams, is an infantry officer in the Nebraska National Guard. He commanded the 134th Infantry, 35th Division, in the last war and was its deputy commander toward the end of the conflict.

Cries of "shame" punctured the address of a Northern Ireland Legion leader at a Rotary Club luncheon in Belfast, when he charged that local authorities are giving jobs to non-service men, in the face of their wartime pledges. He explained that demand was made that service men get jobs only when they are fully qualified.

Six Men Re-Enlist In Regular Army

Six Ulster county men have re-enlisted in the regular army within the past few days, Capt. Harry W. Smith of the local recruiting station, said today.

The six re-enlistees and the reasons they gave for additional army service are:

Pvt. Gene R. Rosa, 24 Ponckhockie street, Kingston, decided that three years in the regular army will do him much good.

Pvt. William R. Nock, 20 Hewitt Place, Kingston, is interested in the education he will get in the regular army and the higher education he is entitled to under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

Pvt. Wolfgang Adels, Box 81, Ashokan, wants to see what he can accomplish in the regular army in his 18 month enlistment.

Pvt. Charles A. Simpson, 262 Linderman avenue, Kingston, wants to travel at the army's expense and is taking three years to do it.

Pvt. William F. Chapman, 79 Van Buren street, Kingston, believes that the regular army has more to offer—career, education, travel and security—than any one organization.

Forty irate mothers, protesting against the closing of a wartime nursery where working mothers could leave their children, descended upon the Town Hall at Lorton, England, recently, and gave the city fathers a bad time. at $1,000; Final Reports Are Due
Next Thursday

Final reports on the drive to secure funds for the welcome home party for Kingston's returning service bowlers are expected to reach the original goal set by the committee. Honorary Chairman Pete Keresman announced today, following an enthusiastic meeting of the executive committee last night.

With all reports expected by next Thursday, Keresman revealed that approximately three-fourths of the goal of $1,000 has been accounted for.

K.W.B.A. Donates $200
Among the amounts already posted are a $220 donation by the Kingston Women's Bowling Association, representing 85 per cent of the K.W.B.A. pledged quota; $30 by The Freeman League, representing 100 per cent contribution; No-can-Do League $100, representing 120 per cent of quota and a partial report of $117 by the Electrols.

Three leagues—City Open, Independent and Good Neighbor—will make final reports tonight, while Electrols will post the balance of their quota.

Emphasizing that no tickets will be sold for the reception, Keres-man said that the party committee was sticking to its original plan to making the show strictly a bowler's affair.

Booklet Is Planned

Features in connection with the already announced program of entertainment and dancing will be the publication of a booklet listing the name of each bowler who served in the armed forces. This memento of the occasion. Each returning serviceman also will receive a card designating his status as a K.B.A. member who was called to service.

A special ceremony honoring the five Gold Star mothers who lost sons in action will feature the dinner program.
Pete Keresman is general chairman of the party, with Addison Jones and Evelyn Dolson, respective presidents of the K.B.A.
and K.W.B.A. serving as general

Control of Fares Big Concern in Air Agreement

By JAMES J. STREIB
Associated Press Aviation Editor
Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 18 (AP)—Britain's great concern in re-writing a commercial air agreement with the United States, still appeared today to be over control of fares, either directly by the governments or through an operators' conference with the governments overseeing compliance.

The British lack of modern transport aircraft figures strongly in their thinking on the agreement, although Sir William Hill, who is scheduled to resign March 31 as director general of British civil aviation, said the United Kingdom welcomed American air services despite its own lack of planes for comparable operations.

"We do not stand for restrictions or hampering," said Sir William, who soon will become director general of the International Air Transport Association. "We do want low cost mass travel," he told a press conference. "Whatever we have done or any restrictions we have suggested have been based on the principle that some regulation is necessary in the best interests of all concerned—passenger, operator and taxpayer."

George Baker, the American delegation chief at the current conference here, said the United States policy forbade sale or lease of surplus four-engine transports to countries not having signed bilateral agreements.

Catholic Weekly Charges Discriminatory Action

Tokyo, Jan. 18 (AP)—The religious beliefs of 30 educators General MacArthur requested be sent to Japan to help revise her school system "were not known to us" at Allied headquarters, Brig. Gen. Ken R. Dyke said today.

America, the national Catholic weekly, said in Washington yesterday that no one of the 30 was a Catholic and charged "the absence of Catholic representation appears to be conscious exclusion."

Dyke, head of MacArthur's education and information section, said: "There was no attempt to discriminate. Selection was made on the basis of the individual's reputation. If any or all of them are sought as representatives of denominational colleges, that was not a factor. As a matter of fact, some of those in my section who conceived and carried out the selections are themselves Catholics."

In Washington yesterday, State Department officials said it could be assumed that Catholics would be invited to join the educators' mission.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Madrid, Jan. 18—Spain's high cost of living—like that of other countries—puts the wage earner rather in the position of the small boy who can't reach the jam on the pantry shelf.

The average pay of the laboring man is from a dollar to $1.35 a day. Even skilled labor at a whole gets the latter figure, and as much as $1.75 is exceptional.

Naturally the cost of necessities isn't on speaking terms with such wages, or anything like them. The worker has to resort to the black market for many of his necessities and the prices are five times those fixed by the government for rationing. The result is that the person of small means can't buy meat, sugar, eggs, butter or other similar items in the food line, and is equally hard hit when it comes to clothing.

It doesn't take an expert accountant to figure out that it calls for a stiff income to enable one to pay $2 to $2.20 per dozen for eggs, and the same for a pound of butter, from $1.25 to $1.49 a pound for meat, 60 cents a pound for fish (which is one of the chief foods of Spain) and about 50 cents a pound for flour with which to make the staff of life. One of the greatest hardships lies in the cost of olive oil, which is a prime necessity.

Being confronted with these staggering figures Mrs. Mack and I have been sleuthing about among people of small means to discover how they manage to get along. And get along they do, for while there is undernourishment (and always has been) and hardship among some sections of the poorer classes, yet foreign observers who live here say that hunger is not one of the trials of the workers as a whole.

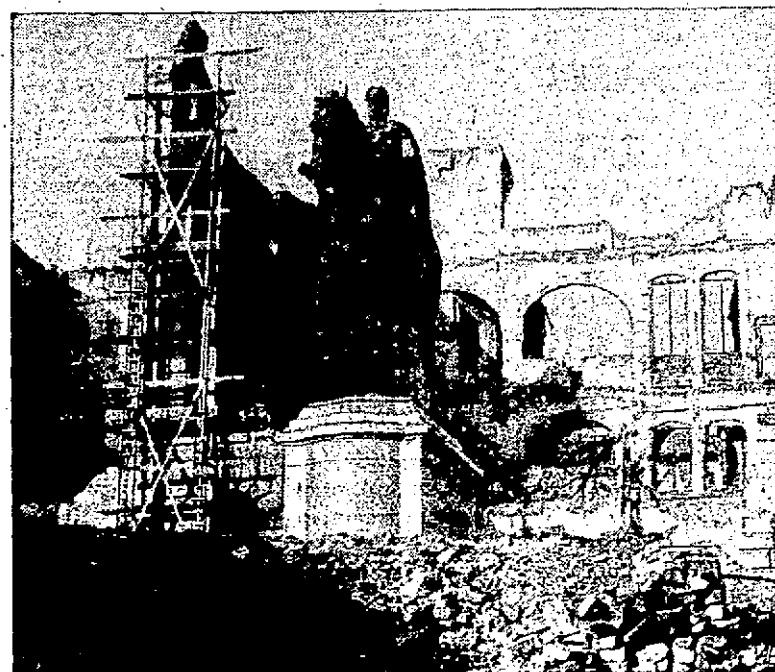

How do poor folk manage? Well, to begin with, every member of the family who is able to earn money goes out to work—papa, mama and all the youngsters who are big enough. No, the children don't attend school if they're needed as bread winners. They find small jobs, or in some cases beg—and artful youngsters they are, too.

As for food, the mainstay of the poor man is bread and soup. But there's a brighter side to the whole story, for while the small wage earner is shut off from many foodstuffs because of the cost, nature has been kind to him in other ways. Good fruit is plentiful and not high in price. Spain also has an abundance of fish.

Most of the actual want is in the cities. The farm hand is more fortunately placed than most, because he demands and gets part of his wages in food, for which he is charged the normal price.

Hershey Urges Sweeping Reforms In Draft Law

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey told Congress today the service had been unable to supply its monthly quota of 50,000 men to the armed forces because so many of the draft eligible 18 to 25-year-olds were volunteering.

Hershey gave this explanation of lagging draft calls to the special Senate military sub-committee, which is investigating the reasons for a slowdown in army demobilization. The army has said that one of the reasons is lack of draft replacements for overseas veterans.

The draft quota of 50,000 monthly was set after the surrender of Japan. Hershey recommended to the committee the immediate extension of the draft law, scheduled to expire automatically on May 15.

Hershey also made these other recommendations:

Amend the selective service law to provide a definite period of service. He said that because Congress had authorized volunteer enlistments for 18 months, "this would seem an appropriate period" for the draft.

The Army and Navy should lower their physical standards and apply them so as to produce the required number of men. Persons with "substantially" less than 18 months service granting of the petition, said he resided at 487 Albany avenue, directly opposite for former bowling alleys.

He said he desired to file an opposing petition, which had been signed by 26 property owners in the vicinity of the Emerick property. The petition in brief read that the signers were objecting to the re-zoning of the Emerick property.

Mr. Martin referred to the occasion when a petition was filed signed by the Common Council some years ago for the creation of the bowling alleys, and that at time it had been stated that there would be no noise in connection with the bowling alleys.

Objection to the granting of the change in zoning was also voiced by Mr. Castiglione, who contended that it would tend to depreciate real estate values of houses in the vicinity.

Supervisor Oscar V. Newkirk of the Second ward also opposed the granting of the Emerick petition. He said it was just another step to industrialize the residential zone in that section, and that there were a number of vacant lots in industrial zones in the city.

Secretary Donald Williams of the Chamber of Commerce said he did not either approve or oppose the Emerick petition, but cited the need of industries employing men in the city. He said that there were only two sites in the industrial zones in the city at the present time that were available for industry, and that one of the sites was held at too high a price to attract industry.

The other members of the laws and rules committee, who were at the hearing, are Aldermen James Carroll, Frank Oulton, Paul Zucca and President John J. Schwenk. Alderman Herman Roosa of the Second ward, also was present.
